LOKER TICKET UP IN COURT.

PAID WAGER BY RIDING ASTRIDE IN BROADWAY.

HOLLY FOUND IN MEXICO.

The Home of Mr. Rouss. Peter W. ROUSS.

Police Struggling with Mystery of Dastardly Plot to Assassinate Peter W. Rouss—Infernal Machine, Containing Enough Giant Powder to Blow Up a House, Failed to Work.

The police are trying to solve today the deep mystery in the dastardly attempt to assassinate Peter W. Rouss, the son of the blind merchant prince, Charles Broadway Rouss.

An infernal machine, filled with enough giant powder to blow up a house, was received in the mail at the Brooklyn home of Mr. Rouss. It failed of its deadly mission only through its clumsy construction. The police are working on the theory that the sender, whose identity is a mystery, sought revenge for some grievance against the father by trying to visit his attention on the son. In a state of great excitement, Mr. Rouss appeared at Police Headquarters in Brooklyn last night, carrying an infernal machine that had been sent to him at his home, No. 241 Park place, Brooklyn, early in the afternoon. Mr. Rouss held a long consultation with Capt. Reynolds, but refused to talk about it to the reporters.

A Clumsy Job.
The box came through the mails and was delivered about noon by a letter carrier. The package bore two five-cent stamps and the postmark showed that it was mailed at the General Post-Office, Brooklyn, at 2 A. M., Oct. 22. Mr. Rouss was at his office and Mrs. Rouss, cousin of the odd shape of the package, ordered the coachman to open it.

Under the wrapper was a cylindrical wooden box about four inches long and three inches in circumference, fitted with a screw cover.

It was the sort of box generally used for the putting up of medicinal tablets. The coachman heard a slight scratch as he unscrewed the lid, but thought nothing of it, and almost faintly when he saw the box full of gunpowder.

A piece of sandpaper had been fastened to the inside of the box so that their heads touched the sandpaper.

They had been so clumsily fastened, though, that the first twist of the cover loosened instead of igniting them and dropped them in the powder.

Mr. Rouss's home is one of the finest residences on the Park Slope and has extensive stable and green-houses. Mr. Rouss's equippage are among the finest in the city.

Mr. Rouss is twenty-six years old and is associated with his father in business. Mr. Rouss reached his store on Broadway at his usual time this morning, and when asked about the infernal machine said that he knew little about it further than what had already been made public.

Mr. Rouss's Story.
The package was received by Frank Odo, a Japanese servant, who has been

"CLEVERLY MADE," CAPT. REYNOLDS.

"This bomb was ingeniously constructed. The man who made it had a knowledge of mechanics and also of explosives. There was enough powder in it to blow up the Rouss home. It contained at least three ounces of giant powder. The man made one miscalculation. Inside of the cover of the machine he had glued a projection to which he bound several matches. These were fitted so that when the cover was unscrewed they would scratch against a layer of sandpaper and explode the powder. By a miscalculation of less than one-eighth of an inch the matches escaped the sandpaper, and, of course, the more the cover was unscrewed the further away they got from it. In many respects the bomb resembles the infernal machine mailed last July to John J. Kietzschka, of the Board of Public Improvements, which blew off the hand of Edward Schroeder, a fellow clerk, who opened it. Police Capt. Peter Reynolds, of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, in our employ for several years, said Mrs. Rouss to a reporter for the Evening World today. He brought it upstairs and laid it with a bundle of letters on a table in his sitting-room. I glanced at it carefully before going down to breakfast.

"When I went back upstairs I picked the package up again. It was wrapped in the same green paper of which the matches were made, and was addressed to Mr. Rouss, No. 241 Park place, Brooklyn. The name was misspelled.

"While I was examining the package I noticed that it rattled as if it contained a great deal of loose powder. I picked it up and felt it, and it was as hot as a red-hot iron. I took it to the barn and opened it, and it was all right to bring it back.

"I took the package to the barn, where one of the stablemen, Patrick Rafferty, opened it. Pretty soon the package came back, very much frightened, and said that it was an infernal machine. I returned home about 11 o'clock.

"We debated the subject all afternoon, and about 6 o'clock Mr. Rouss went down to Police Headquarters and reported the matter.

The police are working on the theory that the package was either sent by a discharged employee or by some one who has a grievance against Mr. Rouss's father. As the father is blind, it may have been intended to hit some calamity on the son.

The elder Rouss receives scores of begging letters every day, as well as communications from cranks who have the idea as to means by which the blind man may recover his sight. The package may have been sent, the police think, by some one of these cranks whose letters have been ignored.

DR. PARKHURST PRAISES SHEPARD.

Firm Believer in Integrity of Democratic Nominée—Says Fusionist Abuse Helps Him.

Dr. Parkhurst, active reformer, is a firm believer in the integrity of Edward M. Shepard, the Democratic nominee for mayor.

In an article just published in the Christian Work, this is what he says: "One of the worst and most probable things that we as fusionists can do, will be to defame Mr. Shepard. It is the known excellence of the man and his record for integrity that constitutes his weakness as a Tammany candidate, and every abusive word that is spoken in regard to him only strengthens him in regard to his own integrity. He is a man of pure life and unquestioned devotion to what he considers to be the righteous and true. People know that perfectly well, and a Fusionist press knows it perfectly well, and it is just because that is a known fact that universal surprise is felt at his present position.

Fusionist Abuse Helps Him.
"Now, if there is anything that will draw Tammany toward him, it will be Fusionist abuse of him. At present, Fourteenth street is not taking to him kindly, partly because they wanted O'Connell and partly because they are inconvenient to have a clean man like Shepard installed in City Hall.

"No one who knows him imagines that he sold or leased his soul for the sake of being Mayor. Should he be elected he will not become the scum of the wigwag. It is not in him to become indecent enough to stand at the 'Frokers' level, and he is not a Fusionist because he is not a Fusionist.

"His record for integrity is a clear record. He is a man of pure life and unquestioned devotion to what he considers to be the righteous and true. People know that perfectly well, and a Fusionist press knows it perfectly well, and it is just because that is a known fact that universal surprise is felt at his present position.

CHAMPE ANDREWS EXPECTS TO WIN.

Young Southerner With Brilliant Record Making Good Fight for Assembly.

Champe S. Andrews, the Democratic candidate for Assembly in the Twenty-seventh District, is making a brilliant canvass and bids fair to win out.

Mr. Andrews is a young Southerner, third of his direct line in the legal profession. He is the son of Col. Garrett Andrews, author of Andrews' Mississippi Digest, and grandson of Judge Garrett Andrews, for twenty-four years Judge of the Superior Court of Georgia.

Mr. Andrews made a name for himself and won a warm place in the hearts of his comrades by his services during the Spanish war.

At the beginning of the war, Mr. Andrews was in possession of a lucrative New York law practice. But the blood of a patriot flows in the young Southerner's veins, and with fine enthusiasm the lawyer gave up his practice and declared that when his country had need of his services, his simple duty was to render them to the best of his ability.

Mr. Andrews raised a volunteer company and was commissioned captain. He served as such throughout the war. He is now Commander-in-Chief of the Spanish War Veterans, Corps of New York State, and a member of the Board of Officers of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, of which President Roosevelt is Commander.

Champe S. Andrews stands himself for all that is best in manhood, and the party he is associated with would benefit by being represented by a young, talented and enthusiastic Assemblyman of such high ideals.

Mr. Andrews is a born orator, with the Southern charm of diction and the magnetic qualities that are the peculiar gift of the elect in his chosen field. His speeches are the feature of the public gatherings whenever he officiates. Mr. Andrews is an ardent Mason and Esteemed Leading Knight of the New York Lodge of Elks.

ENGEL ASKS BISCHOFF TO SUSTAIN HIS CITIZENS' UNION.

Although Ruled Out by Board of Elections, He Is Still Fighting.

Martin Engel's little joke on the Citizens' Union, by which he nominated candidates for Assemblyman and Alderman for them in the Eighth Assembly District, was before Justice Bischoff in Supreme Court, $3000 Term, today.

Engel and his friends filed the nominations of Anthony Smith and Charles Solomon for Assemblyman and Alderman, with a certificate signed by 500 citizens who styled themselves "Citizens' Union." Later on R. Fulton Cutting and James B. Reynolds filed a certificate for Charles S. Adler and Mayer Schoenfeld, to which 320 names were signed. Messrs. Cutting and Reynolds claimed that this was the only Simon pure Citizens' Union certificate.

On this representation the Board of Election rejected Martin Engel's "joker" and ordered the names of Adler and Schoenfeld to be placed on the ballot under the emblem of the Citizens' Union. Gustavus A. Rogers, counsel for Smith and Solomon, asked Justice Bischoff to order the board to put their names on the ballot in place of those of Adler and Schoenfeld.

Julius Mayer, counsel for the Citizens' Union, got a postponement of the case until to-morrow.

BROOKLYN EAGLE OUT FOR SETH LOW.

The Brooklyn Eagle, this afternoon announced editorially its support of Seth Low as its chosen candidate for the Mayoralty. The Eagle is nominally a Democratic paper, but has pursued an independent course in politics, having supported the Republican party along national issues since the nomination of Mr. Bryan and the incorporation of free silver in the National Democratic platform.

BOOKER WASHINGTON DINED IN NEW HAVEN.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—Booker T. Washington, who is attending the Yale bi-centennial celebration, was a guest of Morris F. Tyler, treasurer of the university, at dinner at Mr. Tyler's residence on Monday evening. Ex-Postmaster-General Russell also accepted an invitation to dine with Mr. Tyler that evening and met Mr. Washington.

Pretty Miss Lubonn, Though Deserted by Broker Wilmarth, Appears in Cowboy Attire to Satisfy Yachting Bet.

After a spurt through the park she ended the payment of her wager at a riding academy in West Fifty-sixth street. She was to have been accompanied on her ride by Mr. Wilmarth, the winner of the bet.

But Mr. Wilmarth's nerve failed him. He appeared at the riding academy after 2 o'clock, and protested that he had been gaged so unmercifully by his friends "in the street" that he would not risk further chaffing by venturing the trip up Broadway. Miss Lubonn was angry, and showed in calling on one of the riding academy instructors to accompany her, she made good her wager.

As she dashed out of the academy she threw a scornful glance back at the timid Mr. Wilmarth.

Admiring crowds greeted the fair equestrienne as she galloped along the street.

Miss Lubonn told an Evening World reporter, when seen at the Hotel New Yorker, where she makes her New York home, the story of the bet. She was pretty well confused at the novelty brought by her London wager.

I did not think when I made the wager it was very great, but I see now it was.

Justice Bischoff was called upon this afternoon to settle a knotty point in the new election law. It is: "When may a voter be considered to have presented himself for registration?"

It was raised in behalf of Walter W. Whelan, of No. 242 East Twenty-third street, and twelve other voters, most of them Democrats, who are entitled to vote in the Twenty-ninth Election District, Manhattan, but who stood in line last Saturday night until the clock struck 12, and were then shut out by the Board of Registrars.

In their behalf Edward B. La Fera applied for a writ of mandamus directing the Registrars to place their names on the register.

Opposed to Mr. La Fera were Julius Mayer, for the Republican County Committee; John E. Hodges, for the Citizens' Union; and J. W. Hutchinson for the Board of Registrars.

Mr. Hutchinson read an opinion of Justice Lawrence, in which he said that voters going to vote before the Board of Registrars, one of whom had given his name and the other had not, the first would have presented himself for registration while the other had not and could not be registered.

Justice Bischoff reserved decision. The point is most important because it will surely arise in scores of cases on election day, when large voters will claim for the right to cast their ballots, being inside the polling place.

He gave as his reason that the voters had not been organized to support either party, but that they were scattered all over the city as a Republican army in the Executive Committee, which would have a chance to vote on the day.

Chickasaws to Ratify.
Members of the Chickasaw Club will meet to-night to ratify the nomination of Thomas Gilman as the Tammany candidate for Alderman in the Thirtieth District.

Mr. Gilman is President of the club. The meeting will be held at the club-rooms, Fifty-ninth street and Sixth avenue. Among the speakers in addition to Mr. Gilman, will be Herbert Maas, Assistant District Attorney; James J. Walsh, Dr. M. B. Feeney, J. Kelly, Rollin M. Morgan and J. Stinson.

Engel's "Cit" Candidates Fight to Get on Ballot.
Counsel for Anthony Smith and Charles Solomon, Martin Engel's "Citizens' Union" candidates for Assemblyman and Alderman, respectively, applied to Justice Bischoff to-day for a review of the action of the Board of Elections in barring their names from the official ballot. The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

Alleged Defaulter to the Extent of $40,000 in New Role.

(Special to The Evening World.)

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 22.—Mr. Arthur Sinclair Holly, an alleged young New York defaulter, has been located in the City of Mexico and has just appeared before the public again in a very unfavorable light. Louisville people are generally familiar with his career. The Holly-Lemon wedding was one of the prettiest in October, 1900, and of 1899. Mr. Holly was the New York manager of the Towle Silverware Company, of Newburyport, Mass. He was regarded by all as an excellent young man with a future as bright as could be wished.

The young couple went to New York to live. A few weeks of happiness for the bride, then the denouement. Holly had from New York, and it was announced that he was short in his accounts with the Towle Silverware Company $40,000. Until the truth was forced upon them, the managers would not believe that he was guilty of any wrong doing. The bride returned to her father's home in Louisville and nothing more was heard from him until he turned up in the City of Mexico.

He is known there under the name of L. Lee Hunter, Hunter, or rather Holly, reached Mexico in October, 1900, and went to Guadalajara. Failing to find anything to do he went to the capital. He spent his evenings mainly in the billiard-room of the Hotel Turbide. One evening two gentlemen called on him to umpire a game. He made himself so agreeable that he was invited to join the supper party after the game was ended.

One of the men of the party, taking a liking to Holly, or Hunter, put him up at the American Club. From that time Holly met the best known Americans, and by pleasant manners and interesting conversation ingratiated himself with all that he was soon persona grata in many homes. All this time he was living at the American Club. His bill assumed rather alarming proportions, and his friend, who had introduced him, was forced to speak to him about paying it.

Holly said he had been expecting a remittance and would settle in a few days. Another month went by and the matter became urgent. The friend again went to him, whereupon Holly declared he had loaned all his available cash to another American. This statement was denied by the man referred to, and after considerable recrimination, Mr. Holly was told that he had better drop out of the club. He did so, and his friend who had introduced him paid his indebtedness.

"I always ride astride when I am at my mother's country home near Hudson. I think it is the only safe way to ride, and I don't see why it should appear so novel. Still I'm glad the bet is paid. I did feel just a little like backing out this morning."

Miss Lubonn, who is only about twenty, was born in Brooklyn, but has not lived there since a child.

Alfred Wilmarth, the winner of the bet, is a member of the stock brokerage firm of Morris & Wilmarth, No. 35 Broadway.
